Gery's Place: The History

The land on which the Hayden Street Business Building was built was bought in 1927 by Jesse Smith, Hiram College Librarian. The building was erected as two separate buildings with a common fire wall. The north building has been home to the Hiram Post Office (1928-1966), a grocery store, barber shop, telephone exchange, grocery co-op, computer company, Condar Industries, Al Donley's Financial Analysis Service, and now the Hiram Professional Building, owned by Ken Pike and Dave Auble. Both levels of the south building were first occupied by a branch of the Hower Company, a full-line East Akron department store. It was run by and later owned by Vesta and Reece Spencer, parents of Richard Spencer. In 1933 the Book Nook Coffee Shop became part of the store, but in 1935 the department store closed, and the coffee shop became The Hub, which moved downstairs while the upstairs/street-level became a meat market and apartment owned by Marie and Laddie Reich. The Hub, a popular gathering place for the community had several owners until the late 1970's, when it became several restaurants, including CJ's DownUnder. And now, beginning in 2009, it is Gery's Place DownUnder. At the same time, Chris Smith bought the south building and opened Gionino's Pizza.

And there you have the history of Hiram's ONLY retail building block!
